

okyerema

Mail

Maryland shooting - LIVE: 'Multiple victims' and schools on lockdown as police confirm suspect is in custody after Aberdeen Rite Aid centre attack

Kimberley Richards, The Independent 29 minutes ago

A number of people have been killed in a shooting at a business park in Maryland, police have said.

"I can confirm multiple wounded and multiple fatalities," said Harford County Sheriff Jeffrey Gahler about the shooting about 30 miles from Baltimore.

Mr Gahler said there was no longer any threat at the site, but a number of people had also been injured.

The lone suspect in the warehouse shooting - which occurred Rite Aid distribution centre - has been arrested and is in a critical condition.

The Associated Press reported an unnamed law enforcement official as saying there were three people dead. Law enforcement officials told NBC that the suspect is a woman. A law enforcement source also said officials believe the suspect had a work-related grievance, according to Reuters.

Forecasters unanimous: U.S.-China trade war bad for economy - Reuters poll

194 reactions

5%

73%

22%

Agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives and the FBI Baltimore were at the scene. Maryland Governor Larry Hogan tweeted that the Maryland National Guard had also arrived to the scene of the shooting.

"The First Lady and I are grieving for the loss of life in today's shooting in Harford County, and praying that those who were injured fully recover," Mr Hogan wrote on Twitter.

Follow developments in our live blog below. Please allow a moment for it to load

Maryland Governor Larry Hogan said on Twitter he was "closely monitoring the horrific shooting".

He added: "Our prayers are with all those impacted, including our first responders. The State stands ready to offer any support".

Royal Kingdom Confirms 'Unfortunate' News

Afternoondelightfulness Sponsored

Comey: Mueller may be in the 'fourth quarter' of Russia investigation

103 reactions

3% 82% 15%

Colin Kaepernick's attorney tries to link Patriots to his client

338 reactions

5% 75% 20%

Comments (25)

Comment Guidelines

Leave a comment

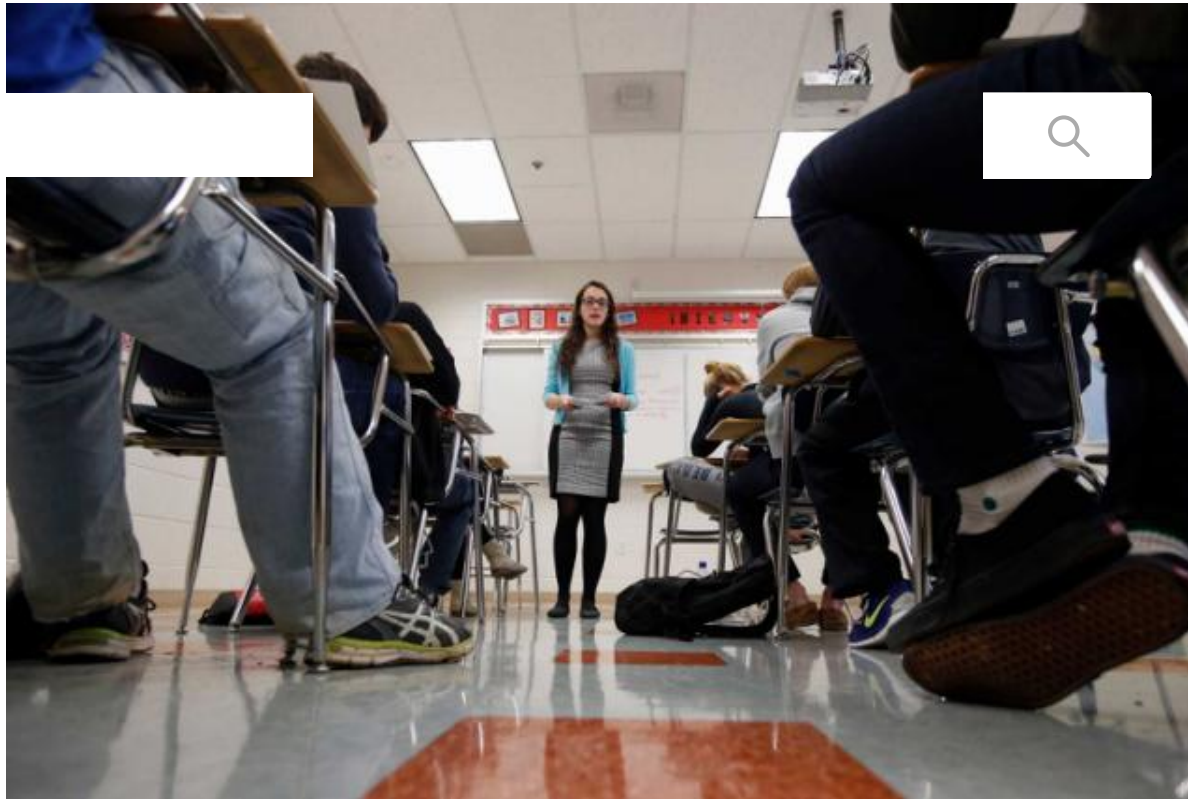

Post

U.S.

'The stories of our lives': Prep school alumni hear echoes in assault claim

San Francisco Chronicle 18 hours ago

Colorado meatpacker recalls ground beef after E. coli death

575 reactions

5%

80%

15%

#1 CPAP Cleaner on Sale - Save $98 Today

Easy Breathe CPAP Store Sponsored

WASHINGTON - Bettina Lanyi remembers. It was 1986, and she was in eighth grade. She and a friend went to a house in Washington's Tenleytown neighborhood packed with high school kids, including a throng of boys from Gonzaga College High School and Georgetown Preparatory School. There was a lot of beer. A few fights broke out. Lanyi recalls being pawed and kissed. It freaked her out. She hadn't been drinking, but her friend, also an eighth-grader, had. Lanyi turned around to see a large freshman from one of the schools lying on top of her friend. Lanyi, then a petite 13-year-old, shoved the boy and kicked him. The boy was surprised and appealed to Lanyi to let him continue. "I'll never get her number otherwise," he told her. ...

Read more

Delta joins United, JetBlue in hiking U.S. baggage fees to $30

By David Shepardson, Reuters 23 hours ago

Eliza First Smart's Kidnapper Pictured for the First Time Since Her Release

230 reactions

7% 68% 25%

Wrongly imprisoned golf artist released after media publicity

1844 reactions

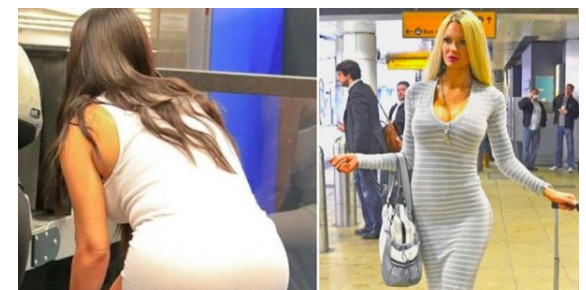

6% 73% 21%

Avril Lavigne Says the Night She 'Accepted' She Was Dying Inspired Her New Album

167 reactions

6% 73% 21%

FILE PHOTO: Delta Airlines planes are parked at gates at Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport in Washington, DC, U.S. on August 8, 2016. REUTERS/Joshua Roberts/File Photo

By David Shepardson

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - Delta Airlines has announced it will hike U.S. baggage fees to $30, joining United and JetBlue in the move.

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - Delta Airlines Inc, the second-largest U.S. airline, on Wednesday joined other major airlines in hiking domestic flight baggage fees by $5 per bag to $30.

similar moves by United Continental Holdings Inc a Airways Corp in August and comes as Congress is considering whether to require the U.S. Transportation Department to assess whether airline baggage and ticket change fees are "reasonable and proportional."

Delta, United and JetBlue are now charging $30 for the first checked bag on domestic routes, up from $25 previously, and $40 for the second bag, up from $35.

Airlines have cited rising costs as a concern, with high fuel prices and bumps in salaries and benefits for pilots, flight attendants and mechanics pushing up operating expenses.

U.S. airlines' revenues from baggage and reservation change fees increased from $5.7 billion in 2010 to $7.5 billion in 2017. Other fees are not reported to regulators.

United Chief Executive Oscar Munoz defended the price hikes last week, saying they were the first increases in eight years. Munoz said the airline would use some of the added fees to reinvest in operations.

Southwest Airlines Co, the No. 4 U.S. airline, has said it would continue to allow passengers to check two bags and does not charge reservation change fees.

U.S. House of Representatives and Senate negotiators have been holding lengthy talks on a compromise bill to reauthorize the Federal Aviation Administration, which could be unveiled as early as this week. Congress faces a Sept. 30 deadline to extend the FAA's operating authority.

In May, the U.S. Transportation Department opposed provisions in a bill approved by the Senate Commerce Committee that would require new rules prohibiting unreasonable airline fees, arguing it would mark a return to the pre-1978 era before airline deregulation.

American Airlines Group Inc Chief Executive Doug Parker told reporters last week that if Congress moved to regulate change fees, the No.1 U.S. airline would likely stop selling

Airport Photos So Funny You'll Laugh Till You Land

Noteable Sponsored

okyerema

Mail

Puerto Rico still recovering 1 year after Hurricane Maria

97 reactions

3%

82%

15%

White Alabama teens cause outrage after posting a photo standing on a black classmate alongside the caption, 'we got us one'

115 reactions

4%

61%

35%

nonrefundable tickets that could be changed to a new flight. "That's where I think we would end up," he said.

ved its competitors in raising baggage fees.

okyerema

Mail

Airlines for America, an airline trade group, has said the fee provision would result in "government-mandated price controls" and should be rejected.

A Senate aide involved in the talks predicted the fee provision would not be included in the compromise bill but would include other consumer protections such as requiring the Transportation Department to set minimum standards for seat size.

(Reporting by David Shepardson)

More on Society & Culture

Elizabeth Smart's Kidnapper Pictured for the First Time Since Her Release

People

Watch This If You're Confused About Why Kavanaugh's Accuser Didn't Speak Up

HuffPost

Florence death toll climbs to 37; Trump visits stricken area

Associated Press

Jeff Bridges' Jaw-Dropping Announcement

StarsShineBest

Sponsored

U.S. judge dismisses GM ignition switch criminal case

Reuters

Teen Abducted by Tad Cummins Recounts Twisted Advances by Ex-Teacher

Inside Edition

2 patients drown as van swept into floodwaters

Associated Press

Reports: Celtics' Jabari Bird was receiving mental health treatment before domestic

Yahoo Sports

The Top Attorneys In North Las Vegas - First Choices!

Nation

Sponsored

ICE Can't Be Trusted to Care for Detainees During Hurricanes

The Daily Beast